

CELEBRATING OUR SPECIAL NAMES

In preschool, our students explored the theme “All About Me.” The focus of the lesson was on the unique and meaningful names that each child carries. Teachers shared how moms and dads carefully choose a name for their baby, often with love and thoughtfulness, making each name truly one-of-a-kind. Students were reminded that their names are a reflection of how special and valued they are.

As the children listened and shared, they practiced Reflection—growing in self-awareness as they considered what makes their names important and how it is part of who they are. They also had moments of Heart Check, pausing to celebrate gratitude for the people who named them and the love behind it.

Lessons like these help preschoolers build a sense of identity and confidence. By recognizing the significance of their names, children begin to understand that they are not only special to their families but also deeply loved by God.
