

EXPLORING FACIAL EXPRESSIONS IN THEATER ARTS

Capturing Emotion

In our Theater Arts elective, we're diving deep into the power of expression—specifically, how our eyes and facial expressions can tell their own unique stories. This week, our students had the exciting opportunity to showcase their skills through a headshot assignment, where they explored contrasting emotions.

This challenge allowed them to not only tap into their emotional range but also to understand how subtle changes in their expressions can convey a narrative without the need for words.

This challenge allowed them to not only tap into their emotional range but also to understand how subtle changes in their expressions can convey a narrative without the need for words.

We are thrilled with the progress we've seen in our students since the beginning of the semester. One student shared her personal journey, expressing excitement about overcoming her social anxiety through the art of performance and improvisation. It's inspiring to witness students gain confidence and discover new facets of themselves as they learn to express their emotions authentically on stage.

As we continue our journey in this elective, we are proud to see our students learning to have confidence in the person God created them to be.

This experience is not just about acting; it's about embracing their unique identities and celebrating the gifts they bring to the stage. We look forward to more moments of growth and discovery as our students shine in their performances!